Sowing and Reaping.

Are we sowing seeds of kindness?
They shall blossom bright ere long.
Are we sowing seeds of discord?
They shall ripen into wrong.
Are we sowing seeds of honor?
They shall bring forth golden grain.
Are we sowing seeds of falsehood?
We shall reap bitter pain.
Whatso'er our sowing be,
Reaping, we its fruits must see.

We can never be too careful
What the seeds our hands shall sow;
Love from love is sure to ripen,
Hate from hate is sure to grow.
Seeds of good or ill we scatter
Heedlessly along our way;
But a glad or grievous fruitage
Waits us at the harvest day.
Whatso'er our sowing be,
Reaping, we its fruits must see.

The Canyon of Night and Death, on the Maranon, in Brazil.

The description of the passage of the canoes of Green River by the Powell expedition, and the account that was published a few months since of the passage by one man of the Great Cañon of the Colorado, will give interest to the following graphic description of the Great Cañon of Maranon, in Brazil, and its passage by a party of raftsmen seeking gold. It is vouched for as a true account by the Missouri Democrat:

On the evening of the fourteenth day, the moon being very bright, they floated until near midnight, when a rising fog compelled them to tie up to the top of a fallen tree. At daylight the fog being very dense, so that one could scarcely see fifteen feet, those on watch cast the line adrift, and the raft swung out into the murky stream, while they prepared to cook their morning meal. They could not see the banks, and floated thus for near an hour—most of the party still being asleep—when, the mist slightly lifting, one of the cooks caught sight of the shore, and noticed that their rude craft was sweeping along much faster than they had ever known it to do before. Somewhat startled, he mentioned it to his comrades, who also noticed it, and in turn called their sleeping friends, and very soon the whole party were wide awake and in anxious consultation. They were not far from the southern bank, and evidently sweeping along under the force of a strong current. They had elected a captain, but his authority was merely nominal, and he was only obeyed when it suited the convenience of those he ordered.

All became uneasy. Franklin insisted on immediately landing on the south side while they could; but the Captain, who was jealous of his influence with the party, at once objected, and asserted that they could easily make the northern bank, and that if they were approaching the ghaut that was the shore they would have to travel by. Suiting his actions to his words, he caught hold of one of the sweeps, and a huge Irishman taking hold of the other the raft was swept farther out; and as the current soon set toward the northern bank, it became doubtful if they could land on the southern side, even if they desired.

Meantime the fog was lifting, and the current rapidly increasing in velocity, which showed itself in an angry, rippling surface. The Captain now regretted not taking Franklin's advice, and no one doubted that they were in danger, and if they were not approaching the terrible cañon perhaps they were nearing some frightful cataract.

Their velocity increased every moment, and as it gathered headway the fears of most of the party culminated in downright terror that completely unmanned them. The Captain became livid and was no longer capable of action, and Franklin, being the coolest one among them, by mere force of character naturally assumed command.

There was a point a mile or so ahead, on the northern side, to which he called their attention, and encouraged them to believe that they could make it if they would only work with a will. Taking the steering oar, he directed two men to enter the canoe, and by paddling, to tow the craft all they could, and then set three men to each of the sweeps and ordered all the rest to arrange themselves on the sides and paddle what they could with their hands. There was a rush for the canoe, and he had to specify which two should occupy it. Not a word was spoken save by Franklin, in giving an occasional order, but everyone worked with all their might, and every eye was fixed on the point. Their speed was increasing, yet, favored with the current setting in that direction, they drew close in under the shore, and it really looked as if they might force the raft in among the bushes, as one of the men in the canoe actually laid hold of them. But just then the line connecting the canoe with the raft parted, and the canoe, caught by the fierce current that dashed along the bank, swept around the point; and there, directly before them, and not two miles away, were the awful portals of the dreaded cañon. A mile below the banks rose rapidly, the river all the while contracting; but about a mile still farther on there seemed to be a dark fissure or crack in the mountain, as though rent by an earthquake, and not over three hundred feet wide, into which the foaming river rushed with a roar that was frightful even at that distance. The precipice at the entrance of the mighty rift towered on either hand full two thousand feet above the mad waters below.

The sight was appalling, and every man felt that his doom was sealed. No power on earth could save them now. Some gazed in speechless terror, some cursed the miserable captain for not landing them when he could, while others prayed or lamented that they were not in the canoe, which was never seen any more. Franklin continued at the helm, keeping the raft straight to the current, and was the only one undismayed in the whole party.

After swinging partly around the point, they shot nearly across the river, but the current quickly doubled to the northern side again, hurrying the raft at great speed, as it rushed under the trees that leaned and spread out over the water. Every soul on board except Franklin and a tall German were either lying on their faces or squatted down. The German seemed absorbed in prayer. Frankling seeing a long horizontal limb that would strike the man if he remained as he was, shouted to him to stoop. But the poor fellow, half bereft of reason, did not have time to act. The limb was on him so quickly that, instead of stooping, he instinctively threw up his arms and clutched it as it rushed to his approach. In an instant the raft rushed from under him, and left him hanging by his hands, with his legs in the water, the fierce current throwing the spray over him as it swept his feet slanting down the stream. His bloodless face was a picture of terror and despair; but there he hung with the grip of a maniac, while the raft dashed on at the rate of ten miles an hour, which every moment was accelerated. His screams were heart-rending, but were soon drowned by distance and the commotion of the water. He continued to hold on over the angry flood as long as the raft was in sight, when on it sped as the river rapidly narrowed, and the waters became more tumultuous and threatening.

The gloomy gorge was now before them. It was terrible, nay, more, it was appalling—for it looked as if the angry river was rushing into a tremendous abyss, for soon after entering the gorge it disappeared round an angle, and a few hundred yards in front a black rent, that stretched from the roaring waters before them into the region of the clouds, was all the eye could penetrate.

Many of the party were now pale with mute despair; some few on their knees continued to pray fervently, while three of their number had fainted outright. The waters around them were boiling, rushing and roaring, with dark green streaks of seething foam, and dashing along with inconceivable velocity, even surpassing that of Niagara in mid-channel just before it takes its final leap.

The raft, which had appeared so heavy and solid in the waters of yesterday, was now lifted, tossed and whirled about like a cork, over which the waves and spray dashed in a deluge; and lucky it was for them that they had lately refastened it together with the tough and yielding withes and vines of the forest, for as it was at starting, or if fastened together in any other manner, it would surely have gone to pieces at the very entrance of the ghaut. The motion was so violent that Franklin was compelled to abandon the helm and crawl to the centre of the raft, to avoid the blows from the oar, and all agreed that he was the only cool and collected man in the party. As the raft, with the speed of an arrow, shot into the yawning jaws of the cañon, he coolly drew out his watch and noted the time of entrance.

The swirl and angry look of the waters were frightful, and the noise deafening, as the broad river was here compressed into less than three hundred feet. A twilight gloom pervaded this chaos of water and sound. The everlasting perpheryic walls towered far overhead, and seemed to beetle and almost touch in the immensity of height, as a faint ribbon of blue sky was alone visible from the obscurity that enveloped the rushing raft. Into the rift and darkness—into the hissing sluice—they shot with such terrific speed as to almost take away their breath and throw them from the raft, to which they were compelled to cling with all their might. They expected every instant—and each instant seemed an age—to see the raft upset, engulphed and torn to pieces. Countless ages of rushing water had worn away the hard perpheryic walls on either side, until they projected in places thirty or forty feet over the abrading current. There occurred opposite angles where the current struck in full force and again rebounded to the opposite side. The darkness under such places was profound; but, fortunately for our adventurers, it was the season of low water, otherwise they would have been crushed by the low overhanging rocks. The mighty convulsions that had riven the mountain for the passage of the river, had torn it apart raggedly, with many sharp angles, like the teeth of a saw, around which the imprisoned waters rushed with awful force and speed, to eat away the rock opposite each point, and rebounding, rush for the next below. These sharp points, projecting into angles on the opposite side, are similar to those described by Dr. Livingstone as occurring below the falls of Zambesi, only that this cañon was much narrower, and the rocky wall on either side inconceivably higher.

The pressure and rush of waters were so tremendous as to be visibly higher at the sides than in mid channel. Past the first point rushed the frail raft—its inner side out in the air, its outer immersed in the foaming current—to dart across the channel into the darkness into one of those recesses worn by time, into which they expected to be crushed or forever engulphed. But the higher swell next the rock saved it. Crash went the oar on the side, and round swung the raft as it shot into the current, to sweep onward past the second point, and again plunge under the recess yawning opposite. Crash went the remaining sweep as the straining raft once more darted out on its headlong race. The place truly deserved the name of the "Cañon of Night and Death;" both the ear and eye were appalled by the terrible sounds and sights that met them at every turn. It was a horrible place, and they were impotent before the frightful power of the cataract. Many of the pale, shivering wretches lay on their faces, clinging to fastenings with closed eyes, as if to brace themselves for the launch into eternity; but a few gazed on with confused horror as one danger after another was passed before it could be realized. Sometimes the raft would spin around in a huge whirlpool, the foam over-leaping it on every side; again it would rush along on its edge, as if about to capsize; then, settling down, plunge forward with the speed of a cannon ball. Time seemed annihilated to some and endless to others, in the Tartarean gloom of the awful gauntlet they were running. The suspense was terrible; how and when would it end.

At length they entered on a long, straight reach. Far ahead of them they saw an immense rock, directly in the middle of the cañon, that lifted its splintered top above the rushing waters that roared around it. It was a frightful looking place, and as they rushed forward it seemed impossible for the raft to avoid it, and to strike it would be like a locomotive dashing at full speed against a granite wall. It would crush them to fragments. Franklin, whose faculties were not paralyzed by terror, cried out: "Look out, boys, and keep cool; if we strike that rock let every man that can seize a piece of the wreck and cling to it like a leech, and perhaps he'll be carried through—yes, through to the gold fields," he continued with ironic language.

"Where?" said the Captain, raising himself on his knees, his face deadly pale, his teeth chattering, and his eyes rolling with maniac terror. But before Franklin could answer, the raft dashed past within a foot of the rock, from which it seemed to glide off, as it were, when, whirling end for end, it plunged under the lee of the rock. The water dashed over it, washing many things off, and threatened to submerge them altogether. Just then they were startled by a wild scream that echoed above the warring waters, and the Captain, springing to his feet, threw his hands aloft, and, with another wild yell of despair, leaped into the seething current, as the raft, wheeling, swept onward in her race. Poor fellow! Terror had dethroned his reason, and, in a paroxysm of fear he had taken a shorter cut to the "gold fields."

The cannon was now straight, but seemed to grow still more narrow and obscure, as onward swept the raft with inconceivable velocity. Interlacing vines and trees could be seen far ahead, but, before the terrified voyagers could speculate on the prospect, the raft shot out from almost twilight darkness and the rent recesses of the mountain into the broad glare of a tropical sun and the smooth waters of a lovely lake, dotted with beautiful islands, while overhead flitted birds of brilliant plumage. A picture as beautiful as a fairy's dream. The passage was made; they had traversed the terrible "Canon del noca yel Muerto," where the river bursting through the sierra, plunges into a capacious lake or bay in which the current spends its force, to again resume its majestic "march to the sea."

The Female Jumper.

The Boston Herald says: Several weeks ago a number of young people in the neighborhood of Dorchester, Massachusetts, improvised a jumping match for a small purse between Mike Flynn and a young man named Murphy. In this match Murphy was badly worsted, whereupon his sister Kate, a bright, strong, and sprightly girl of about twenty summers, became very indignant, and gave out to her companions that she could outjump Mike Flynn if her brother could not. Kate became very earnest in her asseverations, and to satisfy her a match was made for a purse of $75, and, greatly to the surprise of her friends, when the match came off she won it. This greatly shamed Flynn and his friends, so Miss Kate was challenged to another contest, for $200 a side, some days after. The affair attracted quite a crowd to witness the sport, not less than four hundred being present. Kate made her appearance, dressed in flowing red flannel drawers, a la bloomer, with white merino shirt and a pair of pretty gaiters tightly laced to her feet. Mr. Flynn was dressed nearly in the same manner. The arrangements being completed, the exercises began, Flynn leading off with a leap of ten feet and three inches. Katie then took her position, cheered on by her friends, and made the leap, clearing a distance of ten feet four and a half inches. This created great excitement in the crowd, and nerved up Katie to something still better. The second leap was called for, when Flynn cleared ten feet seven inches. This was a very long jump, and the Flynn party felt greatly encouraged. But Katie was again introduced, her friends cheering and feeling confident that she would beat. Carefully she placed her little gaiter boots on the line, and, straining every muscle in her well-knit frame, made the leap, clearing ten feet, nine and three-fourths inches. This was too much for her competitor, and amid the plaudits of the whole company Katie retired with her purse of $400. It is possible that Katie may be started for another match.

MINING CASUALTIES OF 1869.—The list of casualties in mines during the present year presents a ghastly chapter of horrors to shock the sensibilities and sadden the heart. Among the most frightful may be enumerated the calamity in Gold Hill, on the 7th of April, by which thirty-nine men lost their lives; the coal mine explosion at St. Helens, near Liverpool, on the 22d of July last, which resulted in the death of fifty-three men; the Ferndale colliery disaster, on the 10th of June, in South Wales, in which a like number of victims—fifty-three—perished; that at Lancashire, England, twenty-eight killed; the coal mine explosion near Dresden Saxony, on the 2d of August, in which three hundred and twenty-one perished; the colliery explosion at Ferminy, near St. Etienne, France, whereby fourteen persons lost their lives, and this last frightful disaster at the Avondale mines, Pennsylvania, which killed one hundred and eight.

THE WOMAN TRAFFIC IN CHINA.—A Hongkong paper of a late date has the following: We hear from Shanghai, and that, moreover, from a source which we cannot but consider as trustworthy, that agents of the vile crew who traffic in women for the California brothel market have found their way to that port, and are buying up the surplus stock of girls for their purpose. Now it is folly to pretend that the local papers have no knowledge of what is going on, for we have good reason to know that the matter is one of public comment. Yet not a line appears in any of the Shanghai journals exposing the miscreants or saying a single word in opposition to the practice which is injurious alike to Chinese opinion of California and foreign prestige in China!

SVAY-AT-HOME NORTHERNERS have little conception of the rapid rate at which the South is recovering her former agricultural and commercial prosperity. The cotton crop this year will be 3,000,000 bales, worth fully $300,000; that of corn will amount to 285,000,000 bushels, worth $200,000,000 at least, and sugar, wheat, tobacco and other productions will yield $150,000,000 more, making a total of $650,000,000, which, among a population of 11,000,000 is clearly $60 per head all around. Southern land, at its present low price, is one of the best investments in the market.—N. Y. Sun.

Deacon Hackberry and Elder Pillsberry Attend a Colored Church.

The deacon gives us the following account of a visit he made to the colored church, in Washington, in company with some members of Congress:

Last Sunday morning Elder Pillsberry came to my room and invited me to accompany himself and several Senators and Representatives to church. It was a pleasant morning, and I therefore accepted the invitation with a great deal of pleasure. (I had not had time to go to church before since my arrival in Washington.) He informed me that they intended to go to the Colored Church, in the lower part of the city; that he and Mr. Sumner had been in the habit of attending divine service there for a long time, and that it seemed almost like home to them there among their colored brethren. That they received so much more attention there than they did in any of the white churches.

I expressed my delight at being favored with an opportunity to attend a church conducted under the auspices of this unfortunate race of citizens; and after he withdrew from my room I took more than ordinary pains in the arrangement of my toilet for the occasion.

About ten o'clock, accompanied by his honorable friends, the Elder called for me at my room, and, after distributing freely among the party some of the contents of my demijohn, we repaired to the colored sanctuary. On our way the Elder and I were in advance, and as we turned the corner of the street we met an elderly gentleman of color, with some books under his arm.

"That is the Elder of the Church," said Mr. Pillsberry; and as we approached him he said: "Elder Snowball, allow me to acquaint you with my friend Deacon Hackberry, of Illinois, one of the apostles of human rights." I bowed and shook hands with the Elder, at the same time assuring him of my great pleasure in making his acquaintance, and we walked along, arm in arm, until we reached the church.

"What is the name of your church?" I asked.

"De Church ob de Secon' Advent, colored, sah," answered he; "and I hab de honor to be one ob de founders ob dis institution in dis city." "Ah, indeed, Elder," said I, "you deserve much credit for your enterprise."

Our conversation then turned on the many difficulties he must have encountered in building up his church, in the face of the prejudices of slaveholders, copperheads and traitors, and it was continued until we had reached the door.

After entering, the Elder conducted us all to front seats, he going into the pulpit.

The Elder seemed to be brim full of sermon. He therefore made short work of his introductory ceremony, and hastened to the selection of his text, which was from the fifteenth chapter of Judges, and was as follows: "An' Samson slew de Philistines wid de jaw-bone ob de ass."

After recounting the various ups and downs through which Samson had passed, and comparing them to the fortunes of the Republican party, of which he claimed to be a respectable member, he finally came to the explanation and application of his text.

"My breddern and sistern," said he, "from de fore-gwine, you will pursieve dat massa Samson am de pursonification ob de great Republican party ob de present day. Jist like Samson, dey's got de power to do anything; an' dere's not a Celila livin' dat can cut dar har off neider! No, my breddren, an' Massa Greeley am de Trinity ob dis great party. De Philistines am de obstrifferous rebels down souf. De reconstruction measures am de jaw-bone wid which dis Republican Samson smashed out de power ob de rebels. An' now, my breddern and sistern, whar did dis jaw-bone come from? Why, I'll tell you whar it come from! It came from the great Republican Congress, which am de ass. Dar's whar it come from! Yes, my bredren an' sistern, it am dis great loyal ass dat dis colored congregation have to thank for making dem so much better dan de common white trash. Now I'll tell you anudder thing: Dar was Andy Johnsing. What did he 'spect to be? Why, my belubbed breddern and sistern, he 'spected to be Balum, and was going to ride dis ass after he got into de Presidential chair. Did he ride um? I ax dese honorable gemmen here, did he ride on de rump ob dis great and glorious Republican ass? Nary ride did he get! De ass was too much for him. So de ass has been riding dis would-be Balum eber since; and dey's gwine to ride every other man what won't stand by de great ass ob de present day."

This lucid elaboration of the meaning and application of his text did not seem to suit my honorable companions; as we came up street several expressed themselves strongly in favor of Congressional action, in reference to the manner in which ignorant persons trifled with the sacred truths of the Bible. Others thought there should be a committee to instruct colored people as to what was proper to preach. A Border State loyalist seemed to be exceedingly wroth, and was in favor of muzzling all such stupidity. He had been insulted often enough by those stupid niggers. He would submit to it no longer. He was for placing white men in their place, who could be taught how and what to preach, and who would have brains enough to know the difference between Congress and an ass. An eastern member rebuked him for the severity of his strictures upon the Elder's sermon. He did not think that Elder Snowball intended to insult them. The text he had selected naturally led the unsophisticated Elder to the version he gave of it. Others expressed their disapprobation of the sermon—some severely and some mildly.

"There," said Sumner, finally, "you see, Deacon, the necessity of my constitutional amendments. They will remedy all such pious inadvertencies."

"I see it," said I; you must hurry them through and have them adopted by the States this winter, or it will be too late."

By this time we reached the avenue, and the party separated.

EBERHARDT.—This mine, about which there was so much excitement, is now lying idle, for what reason we do not know.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Having assumed the proprietorship and editorial charge of this paper, it becomes us to state to its patrons and the public what will be our course in its future management, which we will do briefly, and for the remainder let the paper, by its contents, show for itself. Our aim will be, in the first place, to make it a live, Democratic newspaper, and we shall strive to make it acceptable to the public as a reliable exponent of current events and an interesting family journal. Nothing will be admitted to its columns that would tend to bar it from the family circle, and personalities will be avoided as much as possible in a public journal. Of course before making the change the former proprietors were satisfied that the DEMOCRAT would be properly conducted, in the interest of the great Democratic party and the advocacy of its noble principles, and we have no fears but entire satisfaction will result. The new firm—SAUNDERS & GROVER—being both practical men, each having for years been engaged in the publication of Democratic newspapers, hope to make the DEMOCRAT what it should be, one of the best country papers in the State. We intend shortly to enlarge and otherwise improve it, and if the friends of the paper will aid a little, its circulation can soon be doubled and its influence correspondingly increased. We ask that aid in the interest of the party whose claims it will unswervingly advocate, that the cause may thereby be advanced and the party, already so strongly in the ascendancy in the county and throughout the State, be still further strengthened by a wider diffusion of the great fundamental principles of the Constitution of the United States, on which it is founded, and from which it cannot, will not depart.

With these remarks we respectfully make our bow to the public, and enter upon the discharge of our duties, confident of success, but craving the indulgence and assistance of our readers.

DISTRICT JUDGE.

That the Democratic party have made first class nominations for Judges of the Supreme Court cannot be and is not denied, save by a few whose opinions are biased by partisan prejudice. It is fortunate for the State that it is so, as there is no doubt of their election. In their nomination for District Judge of the Sixth Judicial District they are equally fortunate. Lewis Ramage is a gentleman of irreproachable character and a first-class lawyer. He has always been a consistent Democrat, sacredly cherishing and earnestly advocating the principles which he believed to be founded upon right and justice and confident of their ultimate success. Yet he has never been a bitter partisan. Claiming the right to hold and advocate his own political views, he has always accorded the same right to those differing with him. In the advocacy of sound, conservative opinions, he has never alienated a friend nor given an opponent cause for personal enmity or ill will. He has never been identified with any local questions regarding land titles, and will go into office entirely unprejudiced and without bias. Yet he is thoroughly informed regarding those matters, having had occasion in a business way to give them a thorough investigation. He is able and honest, and therefore can safely be trusted to adjudicate those questions which have caused endless litigation and have been the source of much expense and trouble to the residents of the District. Taken all in all he is unexceptionable and ought to be elected. It would effect the settlement satisfactorily of cases long litigated, which unsettled have caused ill feeling and expense, and which, for the good of the community, should be legally and equitably determined as soon as possible. That Mr. Ramage will be elected we have no doubt, and we confidently recommend him to the voters of the district. Of his opponent, Robert Robinson, we have nothing to say except that his connection with certain monopolies would render it impossible for him to act impartially, and therefore totally unfits him for the high office to which he aspires. It is safer and better to elect a man like Ramage, who in the discharge of his official duties would have no friends to reward, and because he is a far better man for District Judge than his opponent.

A GLEAM OF SENSE.—Grant is reported as having told Governor Senter, of Tennessee, that he did not intend to interfere with politics in that State, considering that he had no right to do so, and lacking the inclination even if he had the right. In this Grant shows more sense than the Massachusetts Republicans who recently resolved that Congress should exercise a watchful care over the reconstructed States; that is, interfere as much as it pleased.

C. E. DELONG, U. S. Minister, left San Francisco for Japan yesterday.

THE POLITICAL STATUS OF CALIFORNIA.

The Republican papers are trying to keep the courage of their readers up by explaining away the recent Democratic victory in this State, and pretending that it was only an accident after all, and that California is sure to be "redeemed" at the coming Judicial election. We said "trying to keep up the courage of their readers," but that is hardly the phrase, for these editors, even though they are republicans, have a better estimate of the sense of their readers than to really imagine they can delude them by such stuff, which they do not and cannot believe themselves. They talk in this way simply because they must say something, and while they are as brave as lions in the columns of their journals, they do not hesitate in private to declare that their cause in California is really hopeless.

California has gone Democratic; gone Democratic by big majorities, and will remain Democratic by bigger and bigger majorities, until, perhaps, the blessed day—longed for by our down-town contemporary—arrives, when the Republican leaders may march up to the polls a few hundred thousand of their long-tailed allies. Without Chinese suffrage California must remain Democratic. All our interests are enlisted on the Democratic side, and as those interests become more and more perceptible the feeling will become stronger and stronger. It is not only the question of the citizenship of inferior races, which was involved in the Fifteenth Amendment, upon which our people have spoken so unequivocally, that will continue to keep California Democratic; it is not merely dissatisfaction with the usurpations of the party still dominant in the National Government; not merely disgust with the imbecility of the present Administration; but it is the pressure of economical and financial questions, upon which the two great parties have virtually taken sides, but which have hitherto entered but slightly into our political contests here in California.

There is the Tariff iniquity. The Republican party has imposed tax after tax for the benefit of a few Eastern manufacturers and monopolists, until our tariff laws are the most cumbrous and absurd, the most harassing and grinding of those enforced by any civilized nation in the world. They are equivalent to-day to an almost prohibitory export duty upon the wheat of our farmers; they are taking almost one-half of the fruits of the labor of the mechanic and artisan; they are preventing the development of our State, lessening our capital, preventing the building of railroads through our valleys, the opening of mines in our mountains. California must stand with the Democratic party for the repeal of these laws.

There is the financial policy of the Republican party, by which the industry of the whole country is plundered for the sake of a few capitalists, like Jay Cook; the swindling rings of the Treasury Department; the stock jobbing of Secretary Boutwell; the infamous machinations by which the Secretary and his friends sweep millions into their nets by running gold and stocks up and down; the National Bank abomination, by which a few favored capitalists are paid double interest on their money, or rather, are paid immense interest on money which they do not loan the Government; the determination to pay off in gold a debt which was contracted in paper, while the poor creditors of the Government have been and are compelled to take payment in greenbacks. There is the crushing internal taxation, which is still kept up to maintain a scale of expenditure the most wicked and prodigal—the income tax, the license taxes, the thousand and one direct and indirect extortions. To all these things the Democratic party stands opposed, and as they are felt more and more by our people the Democratic party will gain greater and greater strength among us, while the danger of being overwhelmed with the Chinese hordes, which from present appearances will grow greater and greater, will have a tendency to drive many men now Republican into the ranks of the party whose watchword is "free, well recompensed labor."

And in view of these things we are not surprised to see the leaders and the organs of the Republican party becoming, day by day, more and more pleased with the idea of Chinese suffrage. They repudiated this idea previous to the last election, and will doubtless repudiate it in terms now; but they are becoming rapidly more and more disposed to follow the example set in the Republican Convention of Massachusetts and declare boldly in favor of giving the ballot to our Asiatic "man and brother." They would not care to take the onus of this step upon themselves. But does any one suppose that they would make any more than a formal and heartless opposition to the measure were the Fifteenth Amendment adopted and were it proposed in Congress to strike the word "white" from the Naturalization Laws? For they see in Chinese Suffrage the only hope of regaining their lost power in this State. The "docile Chinaman" would not trouble himself about taxes and politics, but would vote as he was bid, and would give the Republican leaders a sure means, (with bayonets enough,) of overriding the sentiments of our people; and thus it is that Chinese suffrage is becoming so popular among them; and it is to this our neighbor looks, when he shouts in jubilation: "The Chinese are coming! Glory hallelujah!"

WHAT KIND?—The Bee heads a long article thus: "Send us Men." Judging from its course of late, we suppose it means Chinamen.

PENNSYLVANIA, Ohio and Iowa hold elections on the 12th of the present month.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO LETTER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29th, 1869.

THE RETURN OF SEWARD.

Ex-Secretary Seward and party arrived yesterday from the southern country, having made the trip from San Diego overland. The old Secretary looks well, though somewhat tired, and expresses himself much pleased with the trip and the country. And indeed he would be one of the most cynical and ungrateful of men could he entertain any other feelings, for his journey has been one continued ovation, the people of every town through which he passed having exerted themselves to the utmost to do him honor. And this without much regard to politics, for though there are a good many Democrats who cannot forget that Seward was the "father of the Republican party," the enunciator of the "inevitable conflict dogma," and the unscrupulous exerciser of arbitrary power during the war, yet his sins in this respect are condoned in their eyes by his course after the struggle ceased, and the fact of his having been read out of the Republican Church, which he founded, by the extreme Radicals who succeeded to its leadership, begets a disposition to consider the ex-Secretary a pretty good sort of a Democrat, as things now go.

A LAUGHABLE INCIDENT.

While the Seward party were passing the night at San Miguel, a little town this side of Los Angeles, some one of the natives, prompted by the desire to procure a useful if not an ornamental souvenir of the great man's visit, burglariously entered the ex-Secretary's room and decamped with Mr. Seward's pantaloons, and proceeding thence to the chamber occupied by Fred. Seward and wife, was about to help himself to some other memento—possibly an article of female attire—when Mrs. Seward gave the alarm, and the curiosity hunter "went," without standing upon the order of his going. When the fact of the robbery was made known the greatest excitement and indignation prevailed among the San Miguelites, and arming themselves in hot haste, the entire population turned out to recover the stolen property and redress the insult. Had the thief been found his shrift would have been short.

PRESENTS TO SEWARD—HIS DEPARTURE.

Seward and party are staying at the Occidental, where their quarters are the best in the house. This evening he will visit the Hall of the Pioneers, where he will be presented with a beautifully engrossed certificate of honorary membership in the society, and a magnificent gold-headed cane, probably the most elaborate, beautiful and expensive article of the kind which has ever been manufactured in the United States. Then, after the necessary champagne and the inevitable speeches, Seward will return to his hotel, where he will be presented with the magnificent old cigar-case and gold snuff-box which have been manufactured for him, and of which it is enough to say that they are designed and engraved with exquisite taste and cost some $1,500 in gold apiece. There will probably be some individual presents made, and altogether the ex-Secretary cannot fail to go away with the highest opinions of the hospitality and generosity of our citizens. And yet, after all, there is a good deal of humbug in these demonstrations. There is a great deal of kindly feeling towards Seward—a great deal of respect for the man who has filled such high offices, but the principal cause of the ovation he has met is that it was well started and became the fashion. For although the people of this great State of California are undeniably as much the superiors of the people of all the other States as the Yankee nation in general is superior to the rest of the world, yet still we do very much resemble a great flock of sheep and follow our bell-wether in every jump and gambol. Farragut, probably even a more popular man than Seward, received no public notice whatever, not even the cheap compliment of a serenade, while Colfax, Vice President of the United States, and who had such an ovation on his last visit, has this time been scarcely noticed. I understand that Colfax feels much chagrined at this, hardly knowing at what score to lay it, and inclining to the opinion that the State going Democratic in the meantime has had something to do with it.

M'COPPIN IN A QUANDARY.

Seward's party leave for Manzanillo, Mexico, to-morrow, in the steamship Golden City, the Mail Company furnishing free tickets. At Manzanillo they will be met by representatives of the Mexican Government, and be escorted to the capital. Frank McCoppin was invited by Mr. Seward to be one of the party, accepted, has closed up his business and made all preparations for the journey, having been at the expense of several new suits of clothes and the trouble of trying to learn to smoke cigaritas. Yet just now an unexpected difficulty arises, and at the present moment I understand the Mayor is debating whether to go or not. The reason of his quandary is this: There exists in the San Francisco Board of Supervisors a plundering "ring," as is well known. This ring is not a political, but only a thieving organization, being composed of both parties, with a majority of Republicans. McCoppin has hitherto held this ring in check, vetoing all their worst measures (by which, by the bye, he has earned the hatred of the pure Bulletin), and he made up his mind to go to Mexico upon the assurance that the Board (in which of course the ring have the majority) would appoint, to act in his stead, Supervisor Ashbury, one of the two Supervisors without reproach. But at the meeting on Monday night the ring developed their plan by refusing to elect Ashbury and postponing the matter for one week—until McCoppin had got off—when it is their purpose to elect one of their own number, which will give them free swing. Hence McCoppin's dilema. On the one hand he cannot, in spite of the scurvy manner in which he has been treated, leave the city to be plundered by the corrupt organization which he has fought so long, and on the other it is very hard to give up a most pleasant and honorable trip for which every preparation has been made. What the Mayor has determined on I do not know, but I venture the assertion that he will not go unless he can get some assurance that things will go straight in his absence.

GRAND PLEASURE EXCURSION.

Some of our rich people are getting up an excursion on a grand scale, something after the style of the Plymouth Church excusion up the Mediterranean, which Mark Twain has immortalized. It is the design to charter the old steamship Pacific to take a party of some two hundred people down the southern coast, up the Gulf of California, and as far south as Mazatlan, and thence striking out into the Pacific Ocean she will visit the Sandwich Islands, cruise all around the group, and then return to California. A number of people from the East will come on specially for this trip, and the party, which is, of course, to be very select, will soon be made up.

I. O. O. F.

The sessions of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows have come to a close, the business having been disposed of easily and expeditiously. The representatives, however, still linger among us, and most of them will take the opportunity of seeing something of California. One and all, they have been the recipients of the most marked public and private attentions, and have been dined, wined and shown around to their hearts' content. They are all loud and hearty in their praises of California. Among them are some Big Indians of the kindred Society of Red Men, and the Red Men have improved the opportunity of doing their Chiefs honor in various ways. To-night there will be a grand reunion of the organization at the City Gardens, at which the Red Men will attend in full force.

"RED STOCKINGS."

Not the least noticeable of our Eastern visitors is the famous Cincinnati Base Ball Club, which has so badly cleaned out our own crack base-ballers. As they had never practiced at cricket, the "first eleven" of California gave them a trial at that game yesterday morning, but with the uniform result—the Red Stockings scoring 118 in one innings, against 79 made by the Californians in two innings. On Friday the "Atlantic Nine" will do themselves the honor of being beaten at base ball by the Red Stockings. These Red Stockings are doubtless the champions of the world. A finer looking set of men can hardly be found. They are the pick of all the Cincinnati Clubs, and their playing is something marvellous.

TOMMY CHANDLER.

By-the-by, speaking of sporting, our California champion, Tommy Chandler, who cleaned out Dooney Harris some two years ago, received a pugilistic benefit last Saturday night at the Metropolitan Theater, prior to his departure for the East, for the purpose of getting up a fight with some one of more renown than is to be found on this side. But for some reason or other Tommy has since given up the trip and has donated the proceeds of his benefit (about $200) to the Orphans' Asylum.

THE MARKETS.

The financial stringency still continues though the pressure is not so great as it was a few weeks since. To-day is steamer day, and it is a hard one, collections being very difficult to make. There have been numerous arrivals of vessels, but the high rates for freight still continue, as do the low prices for wheat; $1 52½ is the highest price quotable for shipping, while the best milling will barely bring $1 55. Flour is unchanged, varying from $3 50 for fine to $5 62½ for Bakers' Extra. Prices for barley also continue low, ranging, according to discription, from 75 cts. to $1 25.

IMPORTATION OF CHINAMEN.

Arrangements are quietly making for large importations of Chinamen, some for this State, but principally for the South. The agents of large Chinese and Eastern houses are here perfecting their plans. It is said that a weekly line will be put on to China, by the Mail Company, as soon as the necessary steamers can be had—the increased business expected being merely due to the expected Coolie trade. Large importations, however, have been arranged for, to go to the South by sailing vessels around the Cape of Good Hope or through the Suez Canal.

WEATHER, ETC.

The weather in this part of the world has been beautiful for the last week, though warmer than is usual. This warm weather, combined with the predictions of earthquake prophets and the reports of shocks in various parts of the world, caused a general foreboding of another great shock, among the more timid part of the community.

The Mechanics' Fair is doing splendidly, and as an exhibition even excels that of last year. The new system of detective tickets is working satisfactorily to the managers.

The only news in the newspaper world is the revival of the Herald, which took a two days' sleep at the beginning of the week. It looks the same as ever, does not refer to its disaster, and will probably run along again for at least another week. Z.

LET UP.—Will the papers never stop talking about Mrs. Stowe and Lord Byron? While pretending to condemn Mrs. Stowe and her "true story," by continually talking about the "scandal" they excite a desire to read and investigate. We may be doing the same thing now, but we are not advertising the Atlantic Monthly. Lord Byron's friends never claimed that he was a pattern of morality, and to-day his works are admired and their author condemned. Mrs. Stowe may have told the truth, which we doubt, and so does Ben. Butler; but if she has what good has been accomplished? who has been benefitted by a disclosure, the thought of which makes one blush? Not one.

AMOS ROBERTS, Sheriff of Solano county, elected by the Republicans, has renounced allegiance to the Radical party. Like most '56 Republicans, he has become disgusted with its dangerous, degrading tendencies, and will hereafter vote the Democratic ticket. So it is everywhere. The leading members of the old Republican party are cutting loose from the Radical abomination.

GEO. W. CURTIS, editor of Harper's Weekly, has been nominated by the Republicans for the office of Secretary of State of New York. Gen. Sigel declines the nomination for Surveyor General, on account of feeble health.

IT IS SAID that it will be arranged that one of the Democratic candidates for Judge of the Eleventh Judicial District will withdraw, which will almost certainly insure the defeat of Briggs, the Radical nominee.

PERSONAL.—We had the pleasure on Thursday of a call from Thos. L. Thompson, of the Solano Democrat, who paid our town a flying visit.

YOLO COUNTY DEMOCRAT.

County Official Paper.

TOWN AND COUNTY MATTERS.

SUICIDE.—On Tuesday morning Dr. Peirson was called to attend a party living about four and a half miles north-east from town. He found him very low and subject to frequent spasms. The Doctor arrived at about 6½ o'clock, and the party died at 8½. A jury was called by acting Coroner W. A. Henry, and the following were empanneled as jurors: Jas. R. Gover, D. Dunphey, T. W. Houx, A. D. Hawley, S. Berwin, J. Coats and A. A. DeLong. Hugh Fowler testified that at about 6 o'clock on the morning of the 28th, he met deceased coming from the hay-stack north of the house; that he was sick and apparently in great pain; that he said he had taken poison because he did not want to live any longer; that he (witness) immediately went after the Doctor. J. C. Fowler testified that his brother Hugh told him that "Pete" was sick and that he immediately went to him and found that he had fallen into a ditch; he remained with him until the arrival of Dr. Peirson, and until his death, which occurred at 8½ o'clock; the deceased told him that he had taken strychnine and that he wanted to die; that a young lady living at Washington, that he loved, cared nothing for him and he had taken poison to kill himself. Another witness testified that he heard deceased declare repeatedly that he wanted to die, and when asked if he were not sorry that he had taken poison, he said a certain young lady did not love him and he did not wish to live. The jury found this verdict: "The jury empanneled to inquire into the cause of the death of the deceased, find that his name was Lewis Pleasants Fowler, a native of Atchinson county, Missouri, that his age was 26 years, and that his death was caused by poison (strychnine) administered by himself with full knowledge of its effects." Young Fowler had been in town on Monday all the afternoon, and was present very late at the closing of several saloons. He left for home about one o'clock on Tuesday morning. He procured the poison during the day (Monday) and carried it about his person. He went to the residence of his brother and slept in a hay-stack until morning and then broke the bottle containing the poison and took enough to kill fifty men. Whatever may have been the faults of the deceased, his gray-haired mother is entitled to the sympathy of the community. Heart-broken and in wretchedness, forgetting all his faults, she only remembers that he was her boy; and perhaps he had been in some degree a comfort to her old age. God help the aged mother who mourns for a son, perhaps with no hope.

IMPORTANT SUIT.—Suit was brought in the District Court of this Judicial District, on Tuesday last, by C. W. Read against Chas. F. Reed, enjoining defendant from selling a certain promissory note given by the Sacramento Valley Reclamation Company to said defendant. The plaintiff avers in his complaint that himself and defendant were partners in the purchase, from the State of California, of land amounting to twenty-nine thousand three hundred acres; that they were equal partners; that the agreement between them was deposited for safe-keeping with Louis A. Garnet, Secretary of the Land Company. Defendant Reed sold the land to the Reclamation Company, it is alleged, receiving therefor $2,500 in gold coin, and a note payable in sixty days for $12,166. The agreement between plaintiff and defendant has been lost or mislaid and defendant refuses to pay to plaintiff his proportion of the money received, or recognize his interest in the note. Injunction granted by the Court upon the filing by petitioner of bond in the sum of $1,000.

GRAND CONCERT.—A grand vocal and instrumental concert by the Musical Convention under the management of Prof. Rutan, will be given at the Methodist Church in this place on Wednesday evening next. The class is composed of the best amateur musical talent of Woodland. The programme is selected from the best authors, and from the proficiency shown by the class, and the Professor's high reputation, a very pleasant time may be anticipated. Prof. Rutan is a graduate of the New York Institution for the Blind, and as the proceeds of the concert are for his benefit, it is hoped that there will be a full house. The Professor is entitled to recognition for his successful efforts in organizing church choirs.

NEW FIRM.—G. M. Eaton and John D. Lawson have entered into copartnership under the name and firm of Eaton & Lawson, and have purchased the stock and good will of Eaton, Greene & Co., in the Galbraith block, next door to Read & Magee's drug store. A full new stock of groceries and provisions has been added to that purchased from the former owners, and it is the intention of the new firm to keep a first-class grocery and provision store. Both the parties are well known to the public and are first-class business men. We would recommend them to the public did they require any recommendation.

WINDY.—Thursday was another disagreeable day; a heavy north wind and clouds of dust, making every one cross and uncomfortable. We hope for a rain before recording another such visitor. It is remarkable that the elements should be so disturbed every Thursday. Can anybody account for it? Why should the people of Woodland be so disgusted every Thursday? There must be some local cause for it.

A PRESENT.—Ryan, of Davisville, has sent us, in care of E. K. Swain, Esq., a very beautiful and suggestive painting. It is a valuable addition to our Gallery of Fine Arts, and can be seen by the curious, without charge, at this office. We are under great obligations to Mr. Ryan, and also to Mr. Swain for his careful kindness in bringing it safely to our hands.

RUNAWAY.—A young man named Goldman having borrowed the use of Fleishman & Kaufman's express wagon, left it at the railroad depot on Tuesday. The coming in of the cars frightened the horse and he started for home. Goldman tried to catch him and was thrown, the wagon passing over him. The horse went home and no serious damage was done. Goldman's injuries were slight.

DR. STUART.—The card of Dr. Thomas M. Stuart will be seen in this issue of the DEMOCRAT. He has first class recommendations from Gen. Geo. B. McClellan, and others. The Doctor has located at Cottonwood, in this county.

IMPROVEMENT.—An awning and side-walk are being built about the south and west parts of the Capital Hotel. It is an improvement much needed and will be appreciated by the patrons of the hotel and the public.

CEMETERY MEETING to-day at the old Union Church. Let there be a full attendance of the citizens, that something may be done to improve and beautify the burying-grounds.

DAILY MAIL.—The new mail contract, by which Woodland and Knight's Landing will hereafter receive and dispatch daily mails, went into effect yesterday. The mails arrive at this place at half-past eleven o'clock A. M.

AUCTION SALE.—L. Dryfus will sell at public auction his household furniture, at his residence east of Court House, on Saturday next—one week from to-day.

CHANGE OF TIME.—It will be seen by reference to the time-table that the time for departure of trains over the Cal. P. R. R. has been changed.

☞ If you wish the very best CABINET PHOTOGRAPHS, you must call on BRADLEY & RULOFSON, No. 429 Montgomery street, San Francisco.

We have made arrangements with an able and thoroughly reliable gentleman in San Francisco to furnish a letter for each number of the DEMOCRAT. These letters will contain an epitome of everything of importance occurring at the Bay, the markets, etc. The first letter appears in the present issue, and is well worthy a perusal.

THE NEXT LEGISLATURE meets on the first Monday of December. It will stand, politically: Senate, Democrats, 27; Radicals, 11; Independent, 2. Assembly, Democrats, 66; Radicals, 11; Independent, 3.

Business men, worn by care and sedentary habits, often suffer from constipation of the bowels, until the evil consequences of such a condition are realized in extreme debility, nervousness and prostration of the vital energies of the system; and it may be safely asserted that a majority of the female sex are little better than invalids, from the same cause; but by using Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, this natural aperient and tonic brings back the vigor and bouyancy of health.

An exchange says: "The surprising curative efficacy of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, in a great variety of chronic diseases, especially those which prove obstinate, and incurable by ordinary treatment, cannot be explained. Nature, aided by art, has here provided a rare combination of medicinal properties, wisely adapted to the cure of diseases common to all mankind."

The effect of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, even when taken for its cathartic properties, are very different from those of any other medicine prepared specially for that purpose. There is no nausea or disturbance of the stomach, and instead of causing any sense of languor, or debility, it seems rather to invigorate the whole system, and excite the keenest appetite.

The Science of Health!

Every Man his own Physician.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

—AND—

Holloway's Ointment.

Disorders of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

The stomach is the great center which influences the health or disease of the system—abused or debilitated by excess—indigestion, offensive breath and physical prostration are the natural consequences. Allied to the brain, it is the source of headaches, mental depression, nervous complaints and unrefreshing sleep. The Liver becomes affected and generates bilious disorders, pains in the side, etc. The bowels sympathize by costiveness, diarrhœa and Dysentery. The principal action of these Pills is on the stomach and the liver, lungs, bowels and kidneys participate in their recuperative and regenerative operation.

Erysipelas and Salt Rheum

Are two of the most common and virulent disorders prevalent on this continent. To these the Ointment is especially antagonistic; its modus operandi is first to eradicate the venom and then complete the cure.

Bad Legs, Old Sores, and Ulcers.

Cases of many years' standing, that have pertinaciously refused to yield to any other remedy or treatment, have invariably succumbed to a few applications of this powerful unguent.

Eruptions of the Skin,

Arising from a bad state of the blood, or chronic diseases, are eradicated and a clear and transparent surface regained by the restorative action of this Ointment. It surpasses many of the cosmetics and other toilet appliances in its power to dispel rashes and other disfigurements of the face.

Female Complaints,

Whether in the young or old, married or single at the dawn of Womanhood, or the turn of life, these tonic medicines display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible in the health of the patient. Being a purely vegetable preparation. They are a safe and reliable remedy for all classes of Females in every condition of health and station of life.

Piles and Fistula.

Every form and feature of these prevalent and stubborn diseases is eradicated locally and entirely by the use of this emollient; warm fomentations should precede its application. Its healing qualities will be found to be thorough and invariable.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases: Bunions, burns, chapped hands, chilblains, fistula, gout, lumbago, mercurial eruptions, piles, rheumatism, ringworm, salt-rheum, scalds, skin diseases, swelled glands, sore legs, sore breasts, sore heads, sore throats, sores of all kinds, sprains, stiff joints, tetter, ulcers, venereal sores and wounds of all kinds.

CAUTION.—See that the words "Holloway, New York and London," appear as a watermark on every leaf of the book of directions which enfolds each box or pot. No others are genuine. A handsome reward given for information leading to the detection of counterfeiters of the medicines and venders of the deceptive articles, knowing them to be such. Sold at the manufactory, No. 80 Maiden Lane, and by druggists and medicine dealers throughout the world. A great saving by taking the large sizes. Full instructions with every box or pot.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and destroyed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Prepared by DR. J. AYER & CO., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Massachusetts. Price, $1.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

— IN —

MEDICATION!

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A Vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

Dr. Erasmus Winslow's Liver and Stomach Lozenge is the most important medicinal novelty that modern chemistry has produced. It contains two botanical extracts, perfectly harmless in themselves, but embodying all the remedial properties of mercury, and destined in this pleasant form to supercede and banish from which that dangerous excitant is the main ingredient. More than one thousand experiments were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and although the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Constipation, sick or nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenges will be found infinitely more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an anti-billious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried Dr. Erasmus Winslow's Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught, or pill.

The Great Blood Purifier!

For Inflammatiory and chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious Remittent and Intermitttent Fevers, diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the digestive organs.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptiyns, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood healthy, and all will be well.

"The life of all Flesh is the Blood thereof." Purify the Blood and the health of the whole system will follow. It is a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic.

These Bitters are not a gilded Pill, to delight the eye or please the fancy, but a medical preparation, composed of the best vegetable ingredients known.

Among my customers there are some who have acted in such bad faith that I feel forced to call attention to them. A. G. & V. A. Whaley, W. R. Blevins, E. D. Beckett, A. Armsfield and L. These "shirks" and "confidence men" are the first among numerous others that my attention has been called to. TWO FORTUNES.

"Be not among wine bibbers; among riotous eaters of flesh: for the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty; and drowsiness shall clothe a man in rags."—Prov. xxiii, 20 21.

I'll tell you two fortunes, my fine little lad,
For you to accept or refuse—
The one of them good and the other one bad;
Now hear them and say which you choose.

I see by my gift, within reach of your hand,
A fortune right fair to behold—
A house and a hundred good acres of land,
With harvest fields yellow as gold.

I see a great orchard, the boughs hanging down,
With apples of russet and red;
I see droves of cattle, some white others brown,
But all of them slick and well fed.

I see doves and swallows about the barn doors,
See the fanning mill whirling so fast,
See men that are threshing the wheat on the floors;
And now the bright picture is past!

And I see rising dismally up in the place
Of the beautiful houses and land,
A man with a fiery-red nose on his face,
And a little brown jug in his hand!

Oh! if you beheld him my lad, you would wish
That he were less wretched to see;
For his boot toes they gape like the mouth of a fish,
And his trousers are out at the knee!

In walking he staggers, now this way now that,
And his eyes they stand out like a bug's;
And he wears an old coat and a battered-in hat,
And I think that the fault is the jug's!

For our text says the drunkard shall come to be poor,
And drowsiness clothes men with rags;
And he doesn't look much like a man, I am sure,
Who has honest hard cash in his bags.

Now, which will you choose? to be thrifty and snug,
And to be right side up with your dish,
Or to go with your eyes like the eyes of a bug
And your shoes like the mouth of a fish!

All Sorts of Paragraphs.

Of course A's children are not all of an age; one is twelve, another nine, and Jack, the "nubbin," is five. A visitor coming in one day, questioned the children in regard to their lessons. The eldest replied that she had to get grammar, arithmetic, geography, etc. The second got reading, spelling and definitions. "And what do you get my little man?" was asked of Jack, who was busy "spearing" the cat with a wooden sword. "Oh, I gets readin', spellin', and spankin'; and I gets up in the mornin', too."

A periodical says that a tall Eastern girl, named Short, long loved a big Mr. Little, while Mr. Little, thinking little of Short, loved a little lass named Long. To make a long story short, Little proposed to Long, and Short longed to be even with Little's shortcomings. So Short, meeting Long, threatened to marry Little before Long, which caused Little in a very short time to marry Long. Query: Did tall Short love big Little less because Little loved Long?

The Boston Journal says: "A letter with an undecipherable superscription was lately received at the Nashua (N. H.) postoffice. Postmaster Swain concluded that the country contained only one man capable of this chirography, so he endorsed the envelope as follows, and remitted it to the mail: 'Returned to the writer, supposed to be Horace Greeley, for a more legible direction.' After a lapse of three days the letter reappeared, legibly addressed to a relative of H. G."

A lawyer in a certain city in Connecticut, not remarkable for his cleanliness of person, appeared at a party awhile ago with a rose in his button-hole. "Where do you suppose it came from?" said he to a brother lawyer who was admiring it. The latter looked up and down the entire length of the questioner, and with great deliberation responded, "Why I suppose it grew there."

There is in Alaska a grand river, one of the four great rivers of the globe. It is the Kwichpack or Yukon. In length and volume of water it exceeds the Nile or the Ganges, the Volga or the Amoor. Only the Amazon, the Mississippi, and perhaps the Plata, are larger. Compared with rivers that flow into it, the Rhine and the Rhone are but brooks.

A Hartford four-year-old saw his parents preparing for church, and asked them to take him along with them. He was told that he was too little, and must wait till he should grow bigger. "Well," returned he, "you'd better take me now, for when I get bigger I may not want to go." The parents saw the point; he was taken.

The Diamond Region, in Brazil, from whence the larger portion of the diamonds in the world have been derived, is a large valley, surrounded by deep and lofty mountains, and called the Valley of Fire. It is forty-four miles long by twenty-two in width, and is the property of the government.

The Clinton (Mo.) Advocate says: "The horse-thief that sold Henry Hickler a pony, last week, and then went down to Leesville and stole Henry Bradley's mule, was caught. He will not steal any more in this world."

An English farmer by picking over his seed wheat with the utmost care, and planting a grain in a place, at intervals of a foot each way, produced 162 bushels to the acre.

At the fashionable sea-side resorts the ladies do not bathe; they dip, or play a bit with Neptune. The old fellow complains that they do not "go in."

The man who did the thing "right up to the handle," must have been in the milk business, and at about that period was at the watering-place.

Since the publication of the New York revenue returns, it has become a matter of comment how many men without incomes keep carriages.

The New York Sun suggests that only Chinese laborers should be employed during the heated term, for the reason that they are coolies.

Business people who fail in order to succeed, generally become bankrupt in reputation. Altitudes are never reached by going down hill.

If some persons were to expend one-half their fortune in learning how to spend the other half, it would be money extremely well laid out.

The leader of a recent camp-meeting in Ohio announced, "The brother-in-law of President Grant will now lead us in prayer."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS

For all the Purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterous drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity. They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills readily cure:—For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Langour and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action. For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Billous Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it. For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required. For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear. For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge. For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy. As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical Chemists, Lowell Mass.

LUMBER WAGONS,

APPROVED PATTERNS AND FINISH!

I employ no "foreman," for 20 years' experience in the trade—10 years in the Eastern States, 20 years on the Pacific coast, (including 9 years superintendence of the "Pioneer Carriage Shop," Sacramento,) justifies me in assuming that position. Delegating to none the supervision of my work, I am enabled to Guarantee Satisfaction!

My LARGE and SPACIOUS SHOPS enable me to store large quantities of material, and my

SEASONING FACILITIES,

(the only perfect seasoning apparatus on the coast) enable me to defy competition in quality of seasoned work. For verification of above, one has only to examine my facilities in this line, and compare them with those in other shops. I do not pursue the course adopted by many; on the contrary, I season stock before working, and do not put up green stock in wheels, leaving them to season afterwards. I have and keep on hand a large stock of

of all sizes and the finest material the market affords. Also a large variety of Elm and Locust Hubs.

Having given the Oak Hub a fair trial, I have become convinced that they are unfit for first-class work. Parties who may favor me with their patronage may be assured that

No green oak hubs will be found in my work!

In this connection I would call particular attention to my NEW STYLE LOCUST HUB, turned from my pattern, and imported expressly for this trade and Found only at my Shop!

Also made to order all kinds of

FARMING IMPLEMENTS!

Plows, Harrows, &c

I have now on hand Harrows of all sizes, with STEEL TEETH, superior to the imported article. In short, I am prepared to fill all orders, from a Wheelbarrow to a Hornet's Nest.

The PAINTING and TRIMMING DEPARTMENT is equal to the best, and particular attention is paid to repairing and trimming old work.

BLACKSMITHING,

In all its branches, is connected with the wood-work, and both are under my supervision.

I have on hand, for sale,

Plow-beams and Handles, Neckyokes, Singletrees, Stretchers, Clevises, Fifth-chains, Lap-Rings, Harrow-Teeth, Etc., Etc.

All kinds of Plow and Wagon repairing done with neatness and dispatch. Determined to adhere to my long-established rule of manufacturing only the

and having served my time at the two branches of carriage-work, (wood and iron) enables me to guarantee satisfaction in all cases, and to know, as foreman of my own shop, when work is WELL DONE.

To those who have heretofore dealt at other shops, and consequently are unacquainted with my work, I would say GIVE ME A CALL and examine my stock and work. Believing that the surest test of the value of my work can be had in the verdict of those who use it, I respectfully refer the public to

who have and now are using Wagons and Buggies of my manufacture: E. Giddings, J. Laugenour, J. Aldrich, Mr. High, H. Rhoades, Mr. Taylor, J. Jones, L. B. Ruggles, Gray & Freeman, J. Garoutte, Fleishman & Kaufman, Ed. Moses, S. & M. Hyman, George Scott, Mr. Ludden, Mr. Olds, Mr. Lusk, Mr. Hurlbut, R. Fritz, J. Lane, Wm. Davidson, and a host of others whose names can be given if required ☞ Thankful for past patronage, I respectfully solicit a continuance of the favor.
